SEMINAR DESCRIPTION

While most are wary, great leaders know how to manage organizational politics. This seminar vividly brings to life the interplay of power, politics and influence – both upward and across the organization. We will debunk the stereotype of politics as emerging from an unethical manipulative underworld. The key is to know the strategies that enhance our impact on the organization. These strategies work hand-in-hand with the personal characteristics and tactics of leadership that we may already possess. Participants will learn to diagnose political styles and map political terrains. Principles such as the 51% guide and agenda linking will help participants navigate political dynamics, demonstrate ethical leadership, and further career success.
