SEMINAR DESCRIPTION

Successful organizations operate on the edge of chaos and embrace risk, error, and ambiguity, while practicing strategies that reduce the need for doing, undoing, and redoing. You will learn key strategies and practical tools to give you the adaptive capacity to work creatively with change and uncertainty. We will discuss strategies for tapping the human potential for creative thinking, from the inception of ideas to their transformation into practical business strategies and innovations. Learn how effective leaders infuse all levels of the organization with the creative capacity to achieve extraordinary outcomes.

FACULTY

DR. IRIS FIRSTENBERG is an Adjunct Professor of Psychology, University of California, Los Angeles and Adjunct Professor of Management at the UCLA Anderson School. She teaches courses on problem solving, decision making, and innovative thinking in both the psychology department and MBA programs. In UCLA Anderson Executive Education programs, Dr. Firstenberg has taught for many years and is consistently one of the most highly rated instructors. Dr. Firstenberg also teaches seminars on creativity and innovation for a wide variety of organizations, including Amgen, Toyota, Sony Pictures, Johnson & Johnson, Times Mirror, SHRM, Braille Institute, LAPD, Los Alamos National Labs, Northrop Grumman, Cedars-Sinai Health System, Raytheon, Lawrence Livermore National Labs, Bell-Carter Foods, Boeing, Symantec, Edison, DirecTV, NASA, and others. Dr. Firstenberg has written articles and papers on thinking strategies, problem solving, and innovation, and is co-author, with Professor Moshe Rubinstein, of two books: Patterns of Problem Solving (Prentice Hall, 1995) and The Minding Organization (John Wiley and Sons, 1999). Professor Firstenberg and Professor Rubinstein have also created and developed a program entitled "Integrated Innovative Thinking Teams". Many organizations have successfully implemented the process to more effectively transform creative ideas into business solutions. Dr. Firstenberg is the recipient of the 2002 UCLA Faculty Distinguished Teaching Award.
